

The Keck Institute for Space Studies
presents a short course on:

Exploring Once-in-a-Lifetime Targets

Monday, October 29, 2018

8:15 A.M. Coffee

8:45 A.M. - 12:30 P.M. Short Course

Salvatori Seminar Room
3rd Floor, South Mudd Building
California Institute of Technology

Dr. Olivier Hainaut

European Southern Observatory

Fantastic Targets and How to Find Them

Dr. Hope Ishii - HIGP / Univ. of Hawai'i at Mānoa

Getting Close to Long-Period Objects –

Lessons Learned from Past Missions

Dr. Kristina Hogstrom - JPL

Small but Powerful –

State of the Art in Small Satellites

Prof. Soon-Jo Chung - Caltech/JPL

Stronger Together - Coordination Among Spacecraft

for Novel Exploration Strategies

No registration is required for this short course.

Seating is limited and is available on a first come, first served basis.

An informal lunch is provided for all attendees.

for more information go to:
www.kiss.caltech.edu